2) The peon has put in about 4 years and odd of service, and he has finished M S course. He does not seem to have appeared for the M S and failed as a conclusive proof of his educational ~~qualification~~ qualification Anyhow it is too early to think of his promotion to the superior service. In other days, we get more than qualified people for such posts. The rules of recruitment do not contemplate grant of exemption from possessing the minimum educational qualification prescribed under the rules.
